Municipal Government In Maine

How it works, who pays for it and where the money goes.

Citizen Involvement
Active citizen involvement is necessary for good government. Local people can get involved in many different ways. They can: serve on a council or board of selectmen, serve on a board or committee, attend a council or selectmen meeting or attend an annual town meeting.

Municipal Government

From state and federal government
Money from state and federal taxes.

From business
Money from local taxes and fees.

From people and homes
Money from local taxes and fees.

From car and truck owners
Money from local taxes and fees.

Local people pay for the schools in their communities with the help of the Maine State Government.

Schools

Local taxes help fund the community’s police department. This pays officers’ salaries and for the cars and equipment they need to keep your town safe.

Police Department

Local people pay for the schools in their communities with the help of the Maine State Government.

Libraries receive some of the money people pay in taxes. With this, libraries buy books and computers that patrons use, and they pay the people who work there.

Library

Many towns and cities in Maine have parks and public activities. The money that people pay for taxes keeps these parks clean and beautiful. It also provides activities for children and adults, like softball games and other recreational programs.

Parks and Recreation

Many towns have firefighters who are paid to respond to emergencies. They need money to buy trucks and equipment so they can protect you from fires and other dangers.

Fire Department

It is important to keep highways and streets safe and that costs money. The taxes people pay help to fix streets and plow snow.

Highway or Public Works

Your city must make sure that trash is recycled and disposed of properly. Taxes and fees pay for transfer stations and buy trucks and equipment to make this happen.

Recycling and Trash

When an animal is on the loose and could be a hazard, animal control is called. They have animal experts and the needed equipment because of local tax money.

Animal Control

Sometimes families lack money for food, heat and other things that they need. Towns run GA programs to help. Everyone in town helps by paying taxes and fees.

General Assistance

Municipal services are different in each town. To find out more about municipal government in Maine, you can visit the Maine Municipal Association’s web site at www.memun.org

The Maine Municipal Association, founded in 1936, is one of 49 state associations in the United States that provides valuable services and supports municipal government.